DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Hannah had a hard time accepting her husband's decision to move from Pennsylvania to Kentucky because she knew she would miss her family, especially her mother. What are some things people can do to accept a move and adjust to their new surroundings?
2. Was there anything, other than moving, that Timothy could have done to improve his marriage and help Hannah realize that she was too close to her mother?
3. What are some things that parents can do to help their grown children who are married not to be so dependent on them and to cleave to their mates?
4. When Timothy and Hannah were forced to live with Timothy's brother Samuel for a time, it put further strain on their marriage, and it became difficult for Samuel and his future wife, Esther, to continue with their plans to be married. What are some ways a family can deal with having other people living with them for a time?
5. When a tragedy occurred in this story, Hannah blamed her husband and pulled away from him emotionally as well as physically. What are some ways we can work through a tragedy without blaming someone else?
6. Bonnie felt guilty for something she'd done when she was a teenager and was afraid to tell Allen about it. Is there ever a time when we should keep information about our past from a loved one?

7. Allen had a hard time forgiving Bonnie for not telling him about her past. He not only felt betrayed but wasn't sure he could trust her anymore. How can being unwilling to forgive others affect our relationship not only with that person, but also with God? What does the Bible say about forgiveness?

9. What differences did you see in this story between the Amish in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and the Amish who live in Christian County, Kentucky?
10. What verses of scripture did you find the most helpful in this story? In what ways might you apply them to your own life?
